

Coaching Skills: The Path to Improvement

Across the globe there is a growing shortage of high quality, innovative leaders. Schools and colleges are changing: more institutions are working together to provide learners with a relevant learning experience. A new style of leadership is required where all professionals share responsibility for key development and improvement work.

LTA Solutions Ltd warmly welcomes Leaders, Trainers and Teaching Professionals to Northern Ireland to explore how developing and using coaching skills can lead to improvement. During this course we shall visit an organisation that is successful in engaging and developing 'hard to reach' learners.

Background to the course

The development of coaching skills empowers education professionals to unlock potential in their teams and every learner. Participants will learn about the importance of creating a supportive environment where learners are nurtured to increase their self-confidence and self-esteem; motivated to improve their own performance; inspired to set challenging learning goals and work with energy and passion to realise these goals.

This very practical and personal development programme is evidence-based and delivered through relaxed interactive workshops, collaborative learning activities, case studies and role play. It is designed to build the competence and confidence of education professionals to use coaching skills to support others.

Dates of current session:

Session C1 04 July – 08 July 2016

Application for funding deadline:

02 February 2016

Objectives of the course

During this course participants will have the opportunity to:

1. Critically reflect on current beliefs and practices regarding approaches to supporting all learners.
2. Explore innovative coaching methods in which learners may become more actively engaged in setting and achieving their key learning goals
3. Develop a set of professional skills and practices that support the participants in coaching others.
4. Gain appropriate coaching and support skills which help build self-confidence as well as self-esteem of all learners.
